Renaissance Strategic Advisors Bolsters M&A Due Diligence Capabilities, Adds Matthew Mejía as Managing Principal

Arlington, VA – Aerospace and defense advisory firm Renaissance Strategic Advisors today announced the addition of Matthew Mejía as a Managing Principal. “We are very excited with this addition to our team. Our capability to execute on some of the most complex issues facing senior executives continues to grow. Matthew’s focus on mergers & acquisitions due diligence and corporate strategy in both commercial aerospace and defense is a superb fit with Renaissance Strategic Advisors”, remarked Pierre Chao, Managing Partner.

Matthew Mejía has over ten years of aerospace & defense experience in management consulting, strategic due diligence, and investment banking. Having held leadership positions in the aerospace & defense practices at Booz & Company and Charles River Associates International as well as First Equity, a boutique investment bank focused on aerospace & defense middle market transactions, Mr. Mejía focuses on Mergers & Acquisitions and related advisory services for industry clients and financial sponsors.

Mr. Mejía is a graduate of the Jerome Fisher Management & Technology dual degree program at the University of Pennsylvania, earning a B.S., Economics from Wharton with a concentration in International Law & Policy and a B.A.S., Systems Engineering from the School of Engineering & Applied Science. In addition, he is a past fellow at the NASA Glenn Research Center and was a student private pilot.

Managing Partner David Scruggs noted, “Matthew’s past experience both complements and strengthens Renaissance Strategic Advisors’. His expertise in support of some of the largest industrial players as well as some of the most active financial sponsors is exactly the perspective our clients are seeking.”

Renaissance Strategic Advisors is a Washington D.C.-based, aerospace and defense industry advisory firm focused on corporate strategy development, strategic business development services and due diligence/M&A support services. The firm works with clients across the full lifecycle – from venture start-ups to industry leaders; and up and down the value chain – from component manufacturers to prime contractors.
